Courtney Townsend was born in Alberta, Canada. For Townsend, the camera is a tool for knowing the world and showing a part of it others may not always see. Her interest, lies in what her eyes see, but is predominantly felt with the heart. Although her work ranges in landscape, equestrian, self portraits and humans, her principal concern has been the exploration and investigation of the entanglements between living worlds and the culture that emerges in that space.

Jen

Art director and graphic designer, Jen works with alcohol inks on lightweight concrete panels. Each creation is unique. The new series mixes alcohol inks and concrete in the manner of kintsugi: concrete is broken and glued back together while the cracks are sublimated.

Sara De Pasquale

My paintings are created out of curiosity, sometimes separated from reality. They are ambiguous, mystical and above all mindful. The violence, the transience, and the seeds of new life. There is an abundance of structure in nature, and beyond that, capturing the light is all.
